CHINA AND THE POWERS

Sir Robert Hart Points Out Some of Their Errors.

MISTAKE TO FORTIFY LEGATIONS.

Thinks Effort Should Be Made to Cause the Chinese to Realize That Legation Ground Is Sacred—Chinese Question No Nearer Solution Now Than Before the Trouble.

The London Express gives the following account of an interview, under the date of May 24, with Sir Robert Hart, commissioner of customs in China:

"I do not think that we are any nearer to a solution today than we were before the trouble," he said. "The acceptance of the peace negotiations will not really advance the situation in any way, for China is for the moment at bay and will sign anything. Nor have I at all a high opinion of the terms laid down by the powers. Some of the conditions are futile and unnecessary, much has been omitted which should have been inserted. I look on the proposed fortified legation quarter as a very injudicious move. It is a mistake strategically, politically and socially. 'Strategically' because, in the event of a serious attack, the Chinese will be able to capture it if they wish to; politically because a legation is in theory sacred ground, and it should be our purpose to make the Chinese understand that it must be so in practice. We ought to have reasons of protecting the legations on the Chinese government and take measures to see that they do protect them. How can we have serious political dealings of any sort with a country whose we cannot trust even to this extent?"

"Socially it is a mistake, because the presence of such a stronghold in Peking will make the Chinese 'lose face,' which is a more serious matter than some folks think, but above all it will cause relations between the white man and the Chinese to be more strained and unsatisfactory than ever. If you are going to fortify the legations, which are in theory a protection in themselves, how much more necessary must it be to fortify the dwelling places of all other foreigners throughout China who will have no protection?"

"Do you mean to imply by this that the time has come for the foreign troops to be withdrawn, and that we should hand back the control of Peking to the Chinese?" "Not at all, for were Peking to be without foreign troops today there would not be a foreigner alive in this city tomorrow."

"Then how can we establish this rule of peace and good will and mutual confidence, which I gather you believe to be feasible?" "It will be a work of time and of delicate handling. We must be very careful in our negotiations, sometimes try and put ourselves in the Chinese's shoes and look at things from his point of view. The failure in the policy of western nations in dealing with China is due to the fact that they have failed to treat the Chinese as a rational being. If we would deal satisfactorily with him, we must endeavor to understand him. A Chinaman, like anybody else, will sign any contract when he is forced into it, but when you force a man to follow a policy he does not believe in that man will be forever endeavoring to find a means to circumvent his persecutors. If you look back at the international dealings with China, you will find that nearly every contract that has been made with her has been forced upon her against her will."

"People make a great mistake in imagining that the Chinese are not sensitive. They are extremely so, and the manner in which a thing is proposed to them goes a very long way. People imagine that Russia is more popular with the Chinese than are the other powers, but such is not the case. Whatever territory Russia may have acquired and whatever means she may have adopted in occupying that territory, her success at Peking is not wholly due to China's knowledge of Russia's policy or to bribery. Russian officials always treat the Chinese dignitaries with great courtesy and amiability, and the Chinese like their methods. Only recently a member of the tsung-li-yamen said to me: 'The Russians are so polite that when they take something from us they do it so nicely that we feel we must thank them. Whereas, even when certain other nations fall in with our views they do so in a manner which makes it clear that they have no respect for us.'"

"Has the foreigner improved his position with the Chinese by this display of strength?"

"That all depends on how he makes use of his temporary advantage. If we expect that we shall suddenly be able to push the Chinese into becoming a progressive race like the Japanese, we shall make a great mistake. Not only would it be impossible for us to alter the Chinaman's nature, but, as I have pointed out elsewhere, it is essential that we should be most careful to treat him very gently in the matter of reform. Why do we want to make him do this and do that, and above all why in the world do we want to arm him and make a soldier of him?"

"We may thank heaven that he was not a soldier when the recent outbreak took place, and we may thank heaven that it will be some time before he becomes one, for on the next occasion when he attacks the legations he will succeed. Our endeavor must be, if we wish to have people live in China, to put Chinamen in the way of understanding and appreciating the foreigner before they become strong enough to crush him."

NAVAL FOOD STORES.

WHAT "JACKY" GETS TO EAT IN UNCLE SAM'S SERVICE.

The American Navy is Better Fed Than Any Other Navy in the World. What It Costs the Officers to Run the Wardroom Mess.

The United States government gives its sailors only 90 cents a day each, but the American navy is better fed than any other navy in the world. In fact, "jacky" lives better than the average mechanic on shore.

As the appetite of a seafaring man cannot be appeased by angel food the provisions are of the most substantial kind.

All naval vessels are liable to be sent on long voyages or to be stationed where markets are inaccessible, and the stores purchased for the crew must be such as will keep for a long time and not become damaged by changes of climate. Naturally salt pork, canned beef, hard tack, beans, flour, sugar, canned fruits and vegetables are required in large quantities and must of necessity constitute the main part of the daily rations. With these staples as a basis many appetizing combinations can be made.

At sea fresh meat and vegetables are not to be had, but while in port or within reach of a market the navy regulations require the issuance on certain days of these desirable additions to the food supply. In the older days no fresh meat was included in the navy ration, and "jacky" was compelled to subsist largely on corned beef, known in the sailor vernacular as "salt horse," owing to the fact that some unscrupulous contractor at one time long ago passed off horseflesh for beef in a navy supply. The barrel in which the salt meat is kept is to this day known as the "barbecue cask."

The enlisted men are divided into messes consisting of from 18 to 24 men each. Every month the mess elects one of its number to the position of caterer, and he looks after all matters culinary during his term. To him the daily allowances of staple foods are issued each morning by one of the paymaster's men, known as the "Jack of the dust," presumably from his handling flour. The ship's cooks then prepare the supplies for the table. Each mess is usually allowed from four to six commuted rations—that is, the eater is given the value of such rations in cash and is thus provided with a fund of from $30 to $34 per month with which to buy fruits, vegetables, fish, butter and other items which are not included in the list of articles furnished by the government. To furnish the table still further it is customary for each man to "chip in" a dollar or two each month out of his own pocket.

The old time shacks looked with glee upon a plum duty dinner, but such delinquencies as seem commonplace to the new style navy men, who on holidays and frequently on Sundays have delicacies like roast turkey with cranberry sauce, oysters, champagne and even ice cream.

If "jacky" has one failing in the commissariat line, it is his craving for pies of any constituency or nationality. He will eat them on any occasion and in any case. The ship's cook, if he be ambitious, takes advantage of this and makes up a tempting array of pies from materials which he purchases from the paymaster and retails them to the sailors.

The government does not discriminate in the allowances for food supplies in the navy as between officer and enlisted man—that is, it did not up to a year or two ago, when every man in the ship, from the admiral down to a coal heaver, received 30 cents each day. Now the discrimination is that the coal heaver receives 20 cents, while the admiral and all other officers except the gunner, carpenter, pharmacist, chief machinist and the naval cadets receive absolutely nothing for their subsistence on board ship. Many who visit naval vessels and are entertained at dinner or luncheon are amazed to remark that the government provides very good living for its officers, not thinking that the entire cost of the repast has come out of the officers' own pockets.

The cost of an officer's living on one of our vessels varies considerably, in a port where much entertaining has to be done and where there are high priced markets the mess bill, as it is called, sometimes runs as high as $35 or $40 a month for each officer and is rarely less than $25 a month. This represents merely the actual cost of the food and the incidental expenses of the mess, as the government furnishes all servants, crockery, fuel and table linen.

In connection with this subject it may be interesting to note that the captain of a war vessel does not eat with the other officers, but has a separate establishment for himself and is provided with a cook and a steward whose only duties are to wait on him. On flagships the admiral also eats alone. The wardroom mess usually includes all officers above the grade of ensign, and on most vessels consists of from 10 to 20 members. Junior officers and naval cadets constitute another mess, known as the steerage mess.—C. A. McAllister in Saturday Evening Post.

A Kentucky Suspicion.

"Do you agree with the people who assert that milk is not a wholesome article of diet?"

"Well," answered Colonel Stillwell, "I wouldn't like to make positive assertions, but I have heard it rumored that they put a great deal of water into it."—Washington Star.

The SPORTING WORLD

A Driver of Ability.

Theodore T. Maxfield of Bloomfield, N. J., is a very interesting figure in the horse world at present. Mr. Maxfield is only 24 years old, but he is hailed as one of the best drivers in the country. He is the owner of a fine string of trotters and pacers, and his entries in the various circuit races in the east always command attention.

Mr. Maxfield is also very successful as a trainer. His stables at Bloomfield are fully equipped for the purpose. Many well known horsemen state that the young Jerseyman can get more speed out of a horse than any other driver and trainer he has ever met. One of Mr. Maxfield's recent accomplishments was the changing of the famous pacer Monopole, 2:08 1/4, to a trotter. Monopole, who has had an eventful career as a pacing campaigner, can now trot with the best of them. He is now one of the best double gaited horses on the tracks.

Mr. Maxfield has come to the fore in the horse world in a remarkable manner. His coolness in exciting finishes and his facility of knowing just when to spur and when to "ease off" a horse in a race have added to his reputation.

Mr. Maxfield will take his string of horses to Elmwood Park, N. J., this summer, where he will participate in the big races to be held there.

World's Cycling Championship.

A. G. Batchelder of the National Cycling association, who recently returned from the National Cycling championship next year, there should be little difficulty in obtaining the meet, as it is now possible to count upon enough votes in the International Cyclists' union favorable to the American organization. But the second week of the big August fortnight of cycling at the Pan-American exposition will be decidedly international in character, for by that time there will be in this country many of the most noted riders of Europe.

In order to have the short distance championships at Buffalo the final selections in this class will not be made until after the Berlin races. Henri Meyers, winner of the Grand Prix de Paris, is expected to be present, and may prepare himself particularly for Buffalo, since he desires to win the similar contest at the Pan-American exposition.

Fine Western Athlete.

Albert Plaw, the giant athlete of the University of California, will probably have another world's record to his credit when the A. A. U. authorities get through with the claim he has put in to the out for the 16 pound hammer. Using a nine foot ring, Plaw recently hurled the hammer 171 feet 2 inches, breaking the record made by Flanagan, 160 feet. The record was made in connection with a regular field day, and as a feat was taken in the measurements it will undoubtedly be allowed. Plaw is a marvel when it comes to hammer throwing, and but for his dislike of training he would probably still hold the record for the 16 pound hammer thrown from a seven foot ring which he at one time held.

Maker Going Abroad.

Peter Maher is figuring on taking a trip to Ireland during the summer in company with his wife. Maher's mission abroad is for the purpose of seeing his parents and visiting the grave of Tony Siga, the well known Irish bookmaker and sport. Peter says that there are several good fighters in Ireland, and he may bring two of them to this country and manage them.

Ed Hanlon's Loss.

Manager Hanlon has suffered a severe loss in the death of his brother, James Hanlon, at Pittsburg, Mass. The deceased was an elder brother of the famous manager. Hanlon says that before his father died of old age a short time ago there had not been a death in his family in 30 years.

Baseball Fever in Detroit.

Detroit is apparently baseball mad, for during the first four games in that city an aggregate of 35,000 people were in attendance. Hartman, the ex-New York, now playing in Detroit, has a record for his team. Five hits out of five times at bat is his claim to distinction.

PEOPLE OF THE DAY

A Labor Leader.

One of the most prominent figures in the labor field at present is President James O'Connell of the Machinists' International association. The strike of the machinists for a working day of nine hours involved something like a quarter of a million men, but a great many employers conceded the demand at once or within a few days. President O'Connell has been preparing his association for this struggle for several years, and the work that he and his assistants have accomplished in building up the organization is considered as record breaking by labor men. Mr. O'Connell is about 45 years of age and learned the trade of machinist when he was still under 20. He is one of the vice presidents of the American Federation of Labor.

Farewell to Baldwin.

Evelyn R. Baldwin, who heads the Baldwin-Ziegler polar expedition, was the guest of the Arctic club at a dinner at the Marlborough hotel, New York, the other night. The gathering was in the nature of a farewell to the club to Mr. Baldwin. Among those who wished him success in the informal speaking which followed the dinner were Professor William H. Brewer, president of the club; John C. Higgins, United States consul at Dundee, who superintended the refitting of the American ship that will carry the explorers north; P. A. Cooke, Julian Hawthorne, Russell W. Porter of Boston, J. W. Davidson, United States consul at Formosa; Hugh J. Lee, F. W. Stokes, members of the Peary expedition of 1898-4, and Captain Amos Borsall, the last surviving member of the Kane expedition. Professor Brewer American silk flag, with an expression of hope that it would ultimately be floated at the north pole.

Mr. Major's Reading Matter.

The publication of "When Knighthood Was in Flower" came about quite by accident. A friend having some time to wait in Mr. Major's office, asked for something to read and was told that there was nothing but lawbooks on the shelves. He expressed his disgust. "If you must read," said Mr. Major, "opening a drawer in his desk, 'here's a story I've been amusing myself with.' The friend took it and soon became absorbed. He would not give the manuscript up until he had persuaded Mr. Major to let him submit it to a publisher. The name that the author had given the story at first was "Charlie Brandon," and as "Charlie Brandon" it was rejected by one publishing house if not more.—The Lounger in Critic.

West Point's Discipline.

In the contest between the cadets at West Point and the superintendent, Colonel Albert L. Mills, the latter has undoubtedly come out first best. Secretary Root and the department stand by the colonel, and there will be no revision of the findings of the court martial which dismissed five of the cadets, suspended several and punished in various ways a number of others. It is believed that hazing at the academy will hereafter be very mild in form, if it is not entirely discontinued.

A New Trust President.

William H. Butler has been elected president of the Universal Tobacco company, which was recently formed. It is said that the other officers of the company have not yet been chosen. Mr. Butler was one of the organizers of the American Tobacco company and was later president of the Union Tobacco company, which sold out to the American.

The publication of the article entitled "Facts for the Consideration of Voters" in the last issue of The News, created a panic in the camp of the "old council." These gentlemen, who have held the office of Councilmen for so long that they regard themselves as fixtures, saw the coveted job slipping from their grasp and became desperate. Immediately there was a hustling of dry bones. The Mayor, the honorable gentlemen of the council, the clerk, the city attorney, the city collector, the city lamp lighter, the drivers of the city carts, the Duffy, the town crier, the board of health, the entire police force, the city surveyor, the fire department, all were hastily summoned to meet in special council to "resolute."

The editor of The News had dared to criticize the actions of this august body. His guilt was apparent. What should be his fate? Boiling in oil was suggested, but that was too merciful. The punishment did not fit the crime. Wouldn't somebody suggest something. As a last resort the "august body" went into committee of the whole and adjourned to the cave under the City Hall, and when they emerged from their retreat the waiting and impatient multitude were informed that the "august body" had determined to "resolute." And they did resolute to the amount of 12 dollars in the Kentuckian-Citizen and Democrat which you, gentle taxpayer, will have to pay for.

allowed 2 1/2 per cent for such tax as he collects. He collected no part of this bank tax, amounting to some $60,000. The council paid one of its members, Mr. Ashbrook, $1,500 to collect this money, but notwithstanding this fact, and the further fact that the Collector is only legally allowed compensation for such money as is actually collected by him, this economical council gave the Collector about $1,500 for collecting this money, although he had not collected one cent of it. It is a nice thing to stand in with the council, but what do the taxpayers think of it?

The News would like to ask Mr. Ashbrook if he did not, while a member of the council, receive $300 as "compensation for revision of the city charter," the said revision being mostly clipping out the pages of the charter of a neighboring city?

The present city council seem to be determined to allow no money paid out by them for any purpose to get outside of their ranks. Mr. Remington is a member of the council. It is hard to tell when Mr. Remington was not a member. If perchance he should get out through moving out of the ward, he manages to get back in from the ward in which he moves. In other words, Mr. Remington is a professional councilman. Mr. Remington also runs a newspaper. It would seem to the average taxpayer that the printing of the city ordinances and other city printing would be either let out to the lowest bidder or that the work would be evenly divided among the Democratic papers of the city. The Kentuckian-Citizen is an old established and reputable paper. Has the Kentuckian-Citizen been getting any of the city printing or been given a chance to bid on it? Only once. And then Mr. Remington was in temporary retirement. Mr. Remington, the Councilman, gets it all. The Bourbon News has been printed in Paris for over twenty years, has paid its taxes for all that time, and is regarded as a reputable newspaper. Has The News ever been awarded a share of the city printing or been given a chance to bid for it? Mr. Remington, the Councilman, gets it all. The City Charter says that no member of the Council shall be directly or indirectly interested in any city contract. Is that the reason why the city printing was not let by contract? The News asks for nothing but what is fair and just, but it makes the assertion boldly and without fear of any future resolutions, that the present members of the Board of Council have been selfish, and that having their own private interests in mind they have neglected those of the citizens and taxpayers of Paris.

In conclusion The News begs leave to again remark that the election of a new Board of Councilmen and the retirement to private life of the present professional politicians will be to the best interests of Paris and the taxpayers. It is unsafe to let one man, or any set of men, gain such a hold upon the offices given them by the people that they begin to think that they are the people. When seven men, who are in reality the servants of the people, begin to think they are the masters of the people, then it is time for the people to show them the error of their ways.

Democratic Committee Meeting.
A meeting of the Bourbon County Democratic Committee is hereby called to meet on Monday, July 2nd, at 8 o'clock, at the residence of Geo. W. Morrow, Chairman.
How easy it is to "resolute" when the taxpayers foot the bill.
Wonder how much of a fee was paid to the one who wrote that resolution ordinance?

GROVER CLEVELAND said, "Public office is a public trust." The members of the "old" council evidently think it is a private snap.
The City Democratic Committee will meet at the Court House to-morrow to select officers of election for the City Primary to be held on July 3d.

SENATOR DEBOE is in Washington for the purpose of having a defenseless widow removed from the post office at New Castle to make way for an able bodied man who make a living at his profession. Senator Deboe was interested in a similar case in this county a short time since.

Is old Kentucky once more to bow her head in shame? It is reported that a number of misguided ladies of Lexington are to solicit funds for Howard and Powers, the two accomplices in the assassination of Gov. Goebel, whose lease on life has been delayed already beyond any reasonable limits. Such nonsense as this is the cause of a large per cent of criminal record in Kentucky. If these ladies really want to be of some public service they should expend their energies in the encouragement of those worthy of it, not crime and criminals of the lowest form.—Danville News.

JNO. FRENEY, W. M.

Kicked Him Down Stairs.

Rev. R. D. Eivens is pastor of the Northern Methodist Church at Nicholasville. Some ugly rumors concerning the pastor and a married woman of the city were afloat and the church appointed a committee to investigate the matter. The committee called on the pastor and the latter promptly kicked the leader down stairs, for which he was fined five dollars and costs in police court.

Jury Disagreed.

In the trial of Frank Smith, accused of stealing a diamond from Mr. Victor Bogaert's jewelry store, in Lexington, the jury could not agree, and was discharged. The jury stood eleven for conviction and one for acquittal, the odd man being Mr. Russell Wilson. Smith was remanded to the custody of the jailer to await another trial.

Smith is the man who was arrested here on Carnival Day on the charge of being a pickpocket. He was fined for disorderly conduct and endeavored to pawn the diamond ring to raise money to pay his fine.

Do You Drink Beer?

There is no other summer beverage, and for the sick and convalescent it is invaluable. Try a case of it and you will never be without it afterward.

Stop Borrowing Your Neighbor's Paper.

A lady came into The News office Tuesday and laying a dollar bill down on the table said: "Will you please send The News for six months to Mrs. I am tired of having her borrowing mine before I get a chance to read it myself."

There are a large number of families in Paris who are in the habit of borrowing their neighbor's paper, and it is a source of great inconvenience to those who believe in paying for what they get. If there is a family in Paris who really cannot afford to pay for the paper, upon application at this office The News will be left at their residence for one year free. We make this offer to protect our regular subscribers.

Praised Unstintedly.

[Richmond Post-Dispatch.]
According to the reports of all the members of the Richmond lodge, A. O. U. W., who attended the Carnival given Wednesday at Paris, there was never anything like it before, in a town of that size. Of the visiting delegations, and there were a number of which, Richmond's was the largest. From the moment of their arrival until their departure there was nothing lacking that such an entertainment could provide for the edification of visitors. Elks, Odd Fellows, Masons and Red Men turned out to meet at the station the incoming delegations, and with one another in genial hospitality. A days round of pleasure was closed with a banquet at the A. O. U. W., after which our lodge members bade their brothers a regretful good-bye, but with warm assurance of the welcome that awaits them at the fair here in July.

GEO. H. CROSDALE will transfer his restaurant, about June 24th, to the Varden property immediately opposite his present place of business. It is his intention to make his new quarters superior in every way to the old, and every attention and courtesy will be given all patrons of the establishment.

Wedding at the Fordham.

At the Fordham Hotel on Wednesday, Mr. T. N. Wood and Miss Nannie Ockerman, of Sharrsburg, were united in marriage by the Rev. F. J. Cheek, of this city. They were accompanied by Mr. Jno. Reed and Miss Myrtle Ockerman, of Nicholas county. Landlord Connors acted as best man. It is hinted that Mr. Connor insists on acting as best man at all the weddings which occur at the Fordham, and that he is quietly taking pointers which will come in handy at his own nuptials, which, it is said, will occur in the near future.

Good Roads Convention.

Complete arrangements have been made for the Good Roads State Convention to be held in Louisville, June 27 and 28. As Gov. Beckham, by proclamation, has asked the County Judges and Mayors to appoint delegates, a very large attendance is expected. All the railroads within 200 miles of Louisville will give a one-fare rate to the convention so the trip can be made at the least expense. The conventions held elsewhere in the South have drawn large crowds, in addition to the delegates. One of the interesting features of the convention will be the exhibition of road-making machinery. There are eight carloads of these tools, and they will be handled by experts. The use of oil to lay dust will be illustrated by practical tests, and the proper kind of drain pipes shown.

The subject of good roads is the most important one the people of Kentucky, or of any other State, can consider. Good roads will add immensely to the value of farming property, as it will make the markets easily accessible to farm and garden products, and by increasing the facilities and comfort of life in the country, will lead to large purchases of lands.
Kentucky has some of the finest turnpikes in the world, but President Moore, of the National Good Roads Association, says he hasn't seen a modern dirt road in the State.

Mrs. Kearns Withdraws From the Race.

The friends of Mrs. Kearns, who was one of the principal contestants for the house and lot offered by the Lexington Herald in their voting contest, having learned that large numbers of copies of the Herald were being purchased by wealthy friends of one of the other contestants, decided to withdraw the name of Mrs. Kearns from the race and to use the funds on hand as a nucleus for a fund to purchase a house and lot for Mrs. Kearns. Mr. T. B. Satterwhite, of Lexington, will receive any contributions sent him, and it is hoped there will be a generous response.

Red Men to Celebrate.

Encouraged by their success in the A. O. U. W. parade on the 12th, Maumee Tribe of this city last night appointed a committee to arrange for a big Indian celebration this fall. It will be in the nature of a picnic, and will comprise a parade, a mammoth barbecue, games of all kinds, races and a reproduction of all Indian customs. Every Red Men's lodge in the reservation of Kentucky will be invited to participate.

Now They're Going to Increase Our County Taxes.

A special from Frankfort to yesterday's Lexington Leader says:

"The State Board of Equalization, which has been in session since February, will adjourn sine die to-morrow."

"The board, in its final report, gives notice to county officials that assessments next year must be made upon a higher basis of valuation than those of this year and that if they do not the State board will increase it when it convenes. Eighty per cent. was made the basis of the valuation this year, but it proposes to go up to 85 next time."

You Do, or You Don't Need Gasses :

The eye being a rather delicate organ, great care should be exercised in the selection of proper glasses. Many believe that glasses should be restored to only when the sight becomes so defective as not to be able to do without. This is a great mistake which must be combated. Whenever there is unmistakable evidence of the need of their aid, they should be used. A neglect of this rule sometimes produces mischief which results in serious trouble if the course be persisted in.

Our Dr. C. H. POWEN having just returned from taking a special course in Optics from one of the best specialists in New York, is prepared to do the best of work, having the latest improved methods of fitting.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Some Facts About Bread.

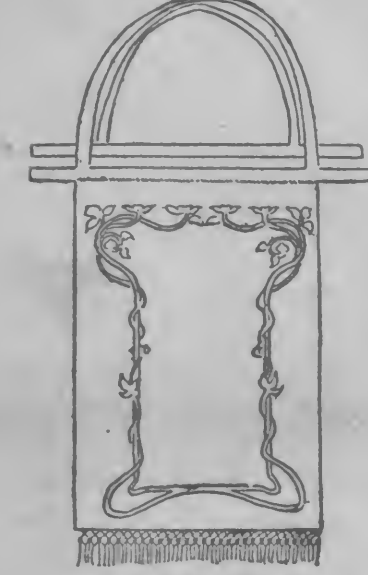

The agricultural department has been conducting some valuable experiments upon common foodstuffs with a view to discovering the best manner of their preparation. The "staff of life" has been particularly come in for a large measure of notice, and some notable facts in regard to the way it should be made have been developed.

"To prepare the grain for bread," says one of the experts of the department, "it is usually cleaned, crushed and sifted into a fine, soft powder which we call flour. Among the various flours the preference should of course be given to the one which yields the most nutritious loaf for the least money. The nutritive value of bread depends not only on its chemical composition, but also on its digestibility, and this in turn depends largely on the lightness of the loaf. It is the gluten in a flour which gives it the power of stretching and rising as the gas from the yeast expands within it and hence of making a light loaf. Rye, barley and oats have less gluten than wheat, and make a heavy, and therefore less nutritious, loaf than wheat.

"It is possible that the various kinds of wheat flour containing part of the bran—entire wheat and graham flours—furnish the body with more mineral matters than white flour, but they probably do not yield more digestible protein, as was formerly supposed. It seems safe that, as far as we yet know, white flour, for a given amount of money, yields the most actual nourishment with the various food ingredients and in the best proportion. The lightness and sweetness of bread depend so much on the way in which it is made as on the materials used. The greatest care should be taken in preparing and baking the dough and in cooking and keeping the finished bread. Heavy, badly raised bread is a very dangerous food and unfortunately many of our people are misled by it. It is better to eat a little of the best than a great deal of the inferior.

A Newspaper Holder.

Two laths about an inch wide or two sticks are needed for this convenient newspaper holder. The stick should be between the lath and the front, which should be embossed. Roman satin is a good thing of which to make the front, as dust glides off the shiny surface, whereas it remains and settles in the folds of the other material.

EASILY MADE AND USEFUL.

to serge. If this is unobtainable, a good fine cloth answers very well. It can be embroidered in some way or other. At the end is a heavy fringe of wool or macramé. The handles are made of ribbon, and it hangs well on a wall.

Allow Time For Play.

The all work and no play woman soon becomes scarcely more than a machine, a machine that too often runs without the wheels being greased. In a hard, grinding, squeaking way, requiring much more strength and time than if a little lubrication had been given in the shape of occasional pleasant moments snatched by the way, says the Jacksonville Times-Union.

There is one thing certain—it is better to try to be content with little, doing without some things that we may have a great desire for, than to so wear ourselves out body and spirit in their attainment that we lose the power of enjoyment, too tired to care for anything.

Concerning Chairs.

They were moving and wanted a set of breakfast room chairs. They had plenty of bedroom chairs with cane seats, as it happened, so the brilliant idea occurred to one of the girls to retain the wooden frames and green and cover the seats with light green leather. This leather cost about $4—sufficient to cover six chairs. Between the cane and the leather the girls placed a double sheet of brown paper to prevent the cane marks from showing on the leather. This latter they fixed on with brass headed short nails, being very careful in cutting the leather to allow for turnings. As the wood of the chairs was very hard, these amateur carpenters, before hammering in the nails, pierced holes for them with a gimlet, otherwise the brass heads ran the risk of being broken off and the nails hammered in crooked.

THE LAST HUNT

By Charles Townsend.

Death and the old squire were face to face again. They had met often in the past, for the old squire had been a noted soldier and traveler in his day, who had laughed at death on battle-field and mountain top, on the burning desert sands and the trackless ocean wastes.

But death was patient. He there any hope? They asked in frightened whispers. The world renowned doctor who had come down by special train from the great city shook his head. No; he could give no hope. When fever once gets a firm hold upon cast iron men like the old squire, medical skill is of no avail.

And so the sick man lay, tossing from side to side in wild delirium. Sometimes he was leading a charge in the far-off Crimea, where he won the Victoria cross, and the throbbing of the blood in his brain was the galloping of his heavy artillery. Sometimes he was holding a krait with dogged pluck against the onrushing hordes of black demons. And he was climbing a great mountain, feeling his way along the cliffs where the eagle screamed and one false step meant a quick plunge to eternity.

Outside the great house a fierce windstorm was raging, which moaned and roared and shrieked like a legion of lost souls. But the old squire heard nothing, heeded nothing, for he had dozed off into an unconscious slumber. At a time the weary watcher at his bedside felt his own eyelids grow heavy, and soon he, too, was sleeping. In the middle of the night the sick man awoke, his brain filled with a new delirium. He thought the hunt was up and that he must be there to the charge of the field, as he had done on so many grand hunting mornings when the wind was south and the sky was overcast. And so, in his fever-madened eyes, he saw himself, as another person, doing strange things.

Quietly rising, he, or this other self, glided past the sleeping attendant, reached his dressing room, where, guided perhaps by the mysterious vision of the sleepwalker, he donned his hunting suit.

The moon rode high in the heavens that night, obscured now and then by patches of wind-driven clouds, but the old squire made his way directly to the stables, where his favorite hunter greeted him with a welcoming whinny. Out on the glebe he sees a great crowd gathered, waiting for the huntman to throw out. And another rider is there whom nobody sees—an awful, shapeless form, on a pale horse.

The covert is reached, and the huntman, with a wave of his hand, throws in his hands. A few anxious moments pass. Then an old hand catches the scent, challenges, and as the fox steals away somebody gives the view halloo: "How! How! Tallyho! Gone away, gone away!" The horn sounds, the fox breaks cover, the hounds are laid on, and the field enters on its first wild burst.

The old squire rides as he never rode before. He gets well away with the hounds. He lifts his hunter over hedge, ditch and fence, gleefully shouting that he will be in at the death. The field is quickly distanced. All are left behind except the dark, whose pale horse is now drawing near and still nearer.

The night grows wilder as the gale increases, while the clouds scurry faster and faster through the wind swept sky. The old squire urges his sturdy horse on through the thickening gloom, flinging out snatches of old drinking songs as he speeds along. On he goes, the hunter's stride lengthening and quickening as his master urges; over a fallow field, crashing through a copse, until without warning they reach the rocky glen, into which horse and rider plunge headlong. The old squire shouting one last triumphant "Hurrah for the coal black wine!"

And death, on the pale horse, was by his side.

When the attendant awoke, the old squire was dead, his face still glowing with the delicious joy of this his last wild ride behind the hounds—Nickell.

A Joking Bishop.

The late bishop of Oxford was not a man too much wrapped up in dry studies to be able to turn a joke. The following rather mordant epigram came from his pen at the time when Kingley had resigned his professorship of history at Cambridge, with some disparaging remarks on that study, and Proude had said in his rectorial address at St. Andrews that history had been corrupted by the clergy:

While Proude instructs the Scottish youth That parson never tell the truth That history's a pack of lies— These strange words who shall combine? One plain reflection solves the mystery— That Proude thinks Kingley a divine, And Kingley goes to Proude for history.

Like a Circus.

Mr. Ringo, the junior member of the firm, had a peculiarly irritating sneeze. It began with an elaborate and terrifying series of facial convulsions and ended with a most lame and impotent parody on that always disappointed the expectant observer.

"Your sneeze," said Mr. Ringo, the senior partner, after watching him through one of his stermutations, "is a regular circus."

"Yes, sir," was the rejoinder. "The performance never comes up to the advance notices."—Yonah's Companion.

NO OIL POOL IN THE GULF.

"Sea Ooze" Of Texas Has Fooled Many Navigators.

The story of the existence of an oil pool in the Gulf of Mexico off the coast of Texas, immediately south of the Beaumont oil fields, which has been told by mariners and repeated with avidity since the discovery of oil near Beaumont, has been exploded, says an Austin (Tex.) dispatch to the New York Sun. One of the first batches of the corps of engineers and geologists sent out by the University of Texas under the late passed by the legislature at its last session, authorizing a mineral survey of the state, has thoroughly investigated this so-called oil pool. They have just completed their work, so far as this pool is concerned.

Dr. W. B. Phillips, professor of the geology of the university, who is at the head of the state mineral survey, recently received several cans of the alleged oil which was taken from this pool. It took but a casual investigation to determine that the substance which has been taken for oil is nothing more than sea ooze, which consists of the decomposition of animal matter found in the bottom of the Gulf under the pool. This ooze when stirred rises to the surface and has the effect of quieting the waves the same as oil. This pool is now just west of Sabine Jetty. It has moved more than eight miles within the past few years. It covers an area of about five square miles.

The character of this ooze examined by Dr. Phillips shows conclusively that the so-called oil pool has no connection with the oilfield of Beaumont. The party under direction of Dr. Phillips will investigate the oil wells in the Beaumont field, with the view of determining the origin of the product, whether it is of marine or other origin. It will be several weeks before this branch of the work is completed.

KIPLING'S NEW WAR POEM.

"Bridge Guard in the Karroo," Describing a Drizzly Detail.

The London Times publishes a stirring poem by Rudyard Kipling entitled "Bridge Guard in the Karroo." It describes the dreary monotony of troops guarding lines of communication. Picture the arrival of a train, the poet says:

Quick are the girls escaped us,
Out of the darkness we reach
For a handful of work old hands
And a mouthful of human speech.
The concluding verse is as follows:
More than a little lonely,
Where the leaping rail lights shine,
No, not contented only,
Details guarding the line.

Rheumatism.

Rheumatic pains are the cries of protest and distress from tortured muscles, aching joints and swollen nerves. The blood has been poisoned by the accumulation of waste matter in the system, and can no longer supply the pure and health sustaining food they require. The whole system is affected by the accumulation of waste until the blood has been purified and brought back to a healthy condition will the aches and pains cease.

Mrs. James K. of 1019 Ninth Street, N. Y., Washington, D. C., writes as follows: "A few years ago I was afflicted with Rheumatism in its worst form. I became completely paralyzed. I was unable to move, and my condition was regarded as hopeless. I was advised by one of the most able doctors in Washington, who is also a member of the faculty of a leading medical college here, to use DeWitt's Kidney Cure. I did so, and after having filled twelve bottles I received the greatest relief. I declined to continue his treatment. Having heard of S. S. S. (Swift's Specific) for Rheumatism, I decided, almost in despair however, to give the medicine a trial, and after I had taken a few bottles I was able to hobble around on crutches, and very soon thereafter had no use for them at all. S. S. S. has cured me and saved me much distress. My joints have left me, my appetite has returned, and I am happy to be again restored to perfect health."
